DETAILED ACTION

1. The indicated allowability of claims 1-10 is withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference(s) to Saito et al. and Saeki. Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Saito et al. (5,579,096). The image forming apparatus by Saito et al. teaches controlling the drive of the image bearing member such that it begins to rotate after the drive of a transfer material carrying member (figures 9A-9H).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

6. Claims 1-5 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Saito et al. in view of Saeki (JP2002-14545A). Saito et al. does not teach a transfer member and a transfer member in a process unit. The examiner takes official notice that it is known in the art to form a cartridge with both an image bearing member and a transfer member. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to form into a cartridge both the image bearing member and a transfer member to obtain ease of maintenance.

Saito et al. does not teach a detecting means for detecting the position of the transfer member. Saito et al. does not teach an intermediate transfer member.

Saeki teaches an intermediate transfer member that separates from an image bearing member and a detector 51 that detects the position of the intermediate member.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the teaching of Saeki for a detecting means that detects the separation of the transfer member from the image bearing member with the image forming apparatus of Saito et al. to prevent shock or abrupt movement at the time of separation and connection (Saeki; abstract).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the teaching of Saeki for a separating intermediate transfer member with the image forming device of Saito et al. since an intermediate transfer member is functionally equivalent to a transfer carrying member in providing the transfer function within an image forming apparatus.

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claim 6 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Prior Art of Record

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Nomura et al. (6,708,011) teaches a cartridge formed with both an image bearing member and an intermediate transfer member.

Response to Arguments

9. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-10 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
